our ecumenical bible study leader:

Bill Richards is Professor of New Testament Language and Literature at the College of Emmanuel & St. Chad, as well as acting principal. His academic interests focus on the letters, hymns and poetry of early Christian writers and readers, particularly those in the Pauline streams of Christianity, as well as the socio-political circumstances which give rise to these texts.

reconciling churches / reconciling peoples

The title of this year's Summer Ecumenical Institute—Reconciling Churches / Reconciling Peoples-suggests the nature of our twofold concern: first, how are we, Canadian Christians, to think about and practice ecumenism when it is seen through the lens of reconciliation? Particularly, how can we do this when the question of reconciliation is made concrete in the ongoing relationship between Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal peoples? Secondly, and following from the first question, how do we as an ecumenical community act positively and sensitively in relation to questions of interpersonal, political, and spiritual reconciliation raised by our Aboriginal brothers and sisters?
